We have, in the present article, no idea of referring seriously to this grave issue, and refer to it only for the sake of amusing our readers with one of the counts of 1/r. Every Eu-ropean traveler beholds with amazement the distinuished courtesy with which Americans of all class-s, the graduate of the public schools and the set-lers in the backwoods, receive and trest a woman, a all places and under all circumstances. On the other hand all American travelars are disgusted with the exhibition of coarseness and impolitones from all classes of men towards women on the con-tinent of Europe.
